My goodness, you're so good. I feel exposed 😅😅

corgilover26 OP · 3h

This is very accurate (my parents are exactly as you described them) I assumed it had something to do with the IC.

I definitely have confidence issues that I have been working through (I moved from my birthplace a few years ago, by the water, and it's been helping me a lot) but it hasn't been easy, I can see the sag traits in me (comes out more when i'm drunk) but sometimes I feel like i'm not allowed to have fun and be myself somehow.

Any tips on how through work through these self confidence challenges?

Wow, you're right on the money. Yes, my father did abandon me when I was 6 years old, so that definitely has had a major impact on my life. I'm definitely drawn to the creative field, I'm just not sure which way to go. But you're right, I still need some occupation that offers some sort of public recognition, which is a need that I've yet to fulfill...🙄

not-cheetos OP • 3h

You hit the nail on the head here. I have a father that was missing for a long period of my life and currently don't speak to either of my parents. The biggest thing in my life is exactly what you said. To show to myself that I can survive and overall be a better person than the people I was once surrounded by.

I feel a little sad that I thrive best with collaboration and associates because I really do crave that so much. I stopped drinking 7 months ago so I feel as though I'm extremely social, my social circle has changed and is almost non-existent. I don't have as many likeminded people in terms of work and people to help me reach my goals at the moment but I'm on the way. It's great to see I'm not crazy and that it's all about the journey of reaching my highest potential. I actually really do value strong communication and relationships a lot. Thanks so much for taking the time to respond

Wow u got the relationship with my parents down to a Tee, it's just this year I've started to visit my family more and actually forgive them for everything that's happened growing up, and I had a feeling my heart had something to do with these gut wrenching, life altering transformations, it literally feels like my life path, I'm constantly learning through these changes in environment, friends, and even who I call my family, thank u 4 this

Thank you sooo much for this detailed observation! It really resonates with me! I've always had issues with being told what to do/when to do things haha. So if I may ask — do you think I'd do pretty well following an entrepreneurial path? I've always had interest in having my own business — I'm not exactly sure what I'd do but it's something I've been heavily considering. That or a practical career such as working for some corporation of some sort.

Also, would my retrograde mercury in Pisces kind of make things slightly difficult for me? In terms of studying and such?

Wow, thank you so much for replying! I don't have a dominant female in my life as of now. But I am 21 so maybe I haven't met them yet. Regarding father, he was there to care for me, provide me with good education but not really there to lend a ear or help with my problems when I really needed it, guidance wasn't there. Regarding value what you said is very true. I definitely need to build on self confidence. You are definitely spot on with partner. I do need someone who is confident and I can depend on for guidance. Somehow I feel they might help me solve my problems that I can't seem to solve on my own.

I thoroughly loved reading your analysis. If it's not too much to ask can you tell me what it says regarding my career?

Woah thank you very much for taking the time to explain all this to me, I am learning more about the aspects and planets and this has been a huge help. The truth is that my relationship with my father has always been very bad and has marked a lot my way of being, and behaving with others. I have a hard time expressing my emotions and I don't know how to behave in relationships so as you say it's something I have to improve. As for a partner I was heartbroken when I was 16 and I've never been able to get over it, will I ever be able to? btw, both father and ex are Gemini's, does this have an influence?

teaforsnail OP • 1 hr. ago

Definitely helps, thank you!

sephantic OP • 11 min. ago

Wow thank you so much for the detailed answer!

The reason I asked about house rulership is because I had looked at my SR for 2023 after seeing something interesting in my upcoming solar return (couldn't help myself lol) and noticed that EVERY SINGLE house has the same rulership as my natal. None of the placements are the same except for my sun in 12th (again both SR and natal) and tbh...that creeped me out. I wasn't sure if it was possible for there to be such a similarity so I did the chart over and over again thinking maybe I made a mistake somehow despite running these charts frequently. But it stayed the same...

As you said, it's in the future and so there's no way of knowing for sure where I'll be located or what life situations I'll have going on. But it definitely freaks me out a bit as I'm not too sure it's a good thing happening if the chart is really right haha. Guess I was just curious if anyone had seen that before or if it's even possible (maybe I really did make a mistake)

But again, thanks so much for the answer :)

sjhaadkea OP • 1h

Oh my goodness, this is insanely spot on. My father was absent and I definitely struggle with headaches when I'm not super hydrated. I do feel I get in my own way and I've been trying to release my need to control and to let my guard down and just relax. Many of my relationships have been with people who I felt I needed to bring up but it just brought me down in the long run.

How do you do this? How are you so knowledgeable in reading charts?

Bang on. I'm also aware people see me this way and it makes me even more self conscious of my interactions. I struggle to maintain healthy boundaries because I know stating them would come off as extremely angry, so I don't. I also struggle to have 'banter' with people for the same reason, so I just stay quiet instead and people must think I'm wholly serious. Finding the right tone is hard for Scorpio risings!

Seeing as my South Node is also in Gemini, I get the feeling I need to move away from his effect on my subconscious and strive, as you put it, to re-establish my value.

In terms of my midheaven in Leo, I do experience issues with fear and guilt surrounding my self worth for the exact reasons you gave. And that has inhibited my career decisions(I'm 22 btw).

Everything from my inability to express myself and fear down to cauterizing my emotions because of a my early home life is completely accurate!

yesiknowimsexy OP · 2 hr. ago

This is wonderful! Thank you so much for your detailed response!

Previous_Chard4311 OP · 18 min. ago

You're so on point i'm actually laughing right now 🤔. With my mother it was more verbal and physical abuse, she was there physically but we don't really have that emotional connection. Conversations are usually short but we get along a bit better now compared to when I was a kid. I mostly spent a lot of time in my room, she had a very short temper so it was kind of like walking on eggshells with her in my childhood.

You hit the nail on the head with the emotional distancing. I took an attachment style test and the results were dismissive avoidant. I did that very recently with I guy I met last year in Nov (He's a Capricorn). He expressed so much interest and chased me for quite a while. It was going well but I guess I got scared and friend-zoned him. We got close very quickly due to mutual sun in the 4h synastry and moon in the 1h synastry. Now I'm starting to think that I like him but I'm not even sure if I really do or if it's just because he's now pulled away a bit. For a while I thought maybe I was just a narcissist because I wasn't able to reciprocate his energy but loved the energy he gave me (I'm able to do it a bit more now, still a struggle though). I tend to self-sabotage and end relationships very abruptly even in my platonic relationships. Interesting that you bring up Mars as well because I do have a habit of provoking love interests. Sometimes I'll poke the bear or throw on the theatrics just to get a reaction to see if they "really" care. He's helped me work on this though (unknowingly). Although i'm not sure if that could also be my 8h Venus.

I definitely do need to get in touch with my ideals when it comes to relationships. I guess I have an unrealistic view regarding them. I grew up watching a lot of Disney Channel, romance films, and reading tons of romance books (literally the only genre I would read) so I expect this whole "thing" like a guy chasing me down in an airport expressing his love for me or standing outside my window with a boombox. Maybe I am a narc... Anyway, not saying that that's totally unrealistic but I do think I need to tone it down a bit. I also find it difficult to approach anyone (especially boys) so that can't be helping.

Thank you for this wonderful analysis PurpleBulbous! I'll make sure to see about that spring cleaning. Maybe i'll give therapy a try as a way to help me on that path.

_cosmic_latte_ OP · 1 hr. ago

Thank you so much for this!!! I've definitely felt a lot of this as Saturn has been moving through Aquarius, but expecting it to intensify with Pluto. Will also be experiencing my Saturn return, so anticipating major life lessons. I've been struggling with how to move through my day to day routine (south node Taurus 6H) and how I communicate with myself. My virgo Chiron opposite natal Saturn will definitely be enhancing that sun/Pluto aspect, but your description of the habits was a helpful reframing for my larger personal view point of, "I'm frustrated and can't get anything done," and then am incredibly hard on myself without making (and as a result seeing) changes in this.

Appreciate the insight, thank you again!

I had to take my time reading this, and once again, I'm amazed by astrology. For real, you've read me completely! Everything you've written is on point, from the missing figure of the Father (and that it has, indeed, had a huge impact on me), to all these Libra related things (I really had a lot of opportunities, but yes, that little "something" always messed up the chances of turning it into a real thing), to the conclusion - yes, there is a lot of baggage that I need to understand, accept, and at the very end - get rid off. I'm starting therapy tomorrow, and really hope to work on the issues that have been suffocating me for so long. Thank you a lot for looking into this, all the best for you too, kind internet stranger!

Thank you so much, the last parts ring especially true right now as I let go of my business and got rid of all my stuff! It seems like the balsamic phase is happening early or at least a practice run of it! I'm interested to see if the current path I've chosen is the thing that meets my personal needs! It seems so at the moment but I am very prone to chopping and changing! Your reading has been very helpful x

palegirlsdiaary OP · 2h

WOW! Thank you again! This is hands down the most insightful look on my relationships aspects in my chart. And I've been seeing a very popular astrologer in my area. She never spoke on these subjects in such details. What hits the most is the part of my Moon and Neptune opposition and my primary needs being met. I've spent years focusing on other people's needs and neglecting my own. But with the help of my therapist, I can see things slowly changing and me being able to put myself and my well-being first more often.

Very interesting part about Pluto squaring my ascendant and a dominant female overstepping boundaries as well. I have the most loving but also strongly emotional mother with fragile health, so I think that would be to root of that problem you are describing.

wow, amazing! thank you so so so very much for your comment. this is so on point. im able to read the gist of charts, but when it comes to my own i become a bit clueless. ive been on survival mode for years probably, but i am finally connected back to family and home (been staying at my brothers) so it's not living day by day wondering what's going to happen anymore. i am currently pregnant and that's been keeping me straight. i can see the unreliability & yes! substance abuse that i've recently overcome. how crazy. thank you again i'm going to re read your comment this really does make me feel better i was feeling alone & lost. while yes i know only i can overcome this, myself, just felt really insecure within my self. thanks again

Really good stuff thank you. Made a lot of sense. Based on what someone else said I'm wondering if there is a link with my father not being very loving and issues of self worth.

AnalysisParalysis30 OP • 5h

This was powerful, thank you so so much!

amugen94 OP • 3h

You are on point, the dominant female is my mother because of whom i have this strong need of structure and independence as only through that, i would be able to get away from her and show that i can rely on myself. I don't have innate attraction towards materialism but as i am a practical person, i do understand giving up everything would make living difficult.

I always dreamt of living in a monastery even though I'm just 28, i had this strong need to live somewhere near forest and be a monk but my mother doesn't like the idea of me turning towards spirituality and so, i focused more towards job, money, status, security.

You are right about father as well. He was self-involved and wanted me to become like others rather than noticing about my uniqueness. He has improved a lot over the years, so that's positive.

Thank you so much 🙏 i hope i would have courage some day to walk on own path

whittaker23 OP • 57m

I would also attempt to understand the symbolism behind the astrological symbolism, to understand WHY IT NEEDS TO BE SO. (for developmental reasons)

This is such an excellent point and I can't believe I've never thought of looking into this. At the same time I wouldn't even know where to start reading my chart in that way.

My 7H is in Taurus, empty. Venus is in Leo in the 10H, conjunct Jupiter, Mercury, Venus. I feel like I should have the opposite problem lol

Severe-Mix-4326 OP • 11h

Wow, sometimes I wonder how you guys read secrets from someone's chart. Yes, female overstepping boundaries, it did happen when I was younger, I'd like not to delve into it except in private.

If I understand you correctly, I should also work on not being too self-focused when trying to attract someone.

The first one already is on point. So if I understand it correct than it is my „mission“ to kind of take what's already there and put something additional to it? Or like transform it some way?

Kingsandvagabonds OP • 5h

Thank you so much! I can definitely feel those themes coming up. I've been thinking about spending less time on tech/online and also doing a major declutter (I think that fits with the Capricorn 2H wanting things more streamlined?) both of which would ultimately make me feel freer which feels fitting for Venus in Sagittarius :)

*meant to say I actually ended up getting my laptop back, a neighbour found it dumped in their garden lol

planetyann OP • 12m

Wow, thank you for this in-depth reply. I've struggled with anxiety and lack of confidence in myself my whole life. For example, I've always wanted to post in this subreddit prior to today because I was curious about my chart/life direction in general — but I didn't out of fear of judgement, not wanting to be vulnerable, and not knowing how to communicate or relate to others. These same attitudes/fears have stopped me from moving forward on a lot of opportunities through out my life. I'm diligently going to be striving to change that.

Zehrac_ OP • 5m

That is so interesting and insightful. So, full disclosure: this is my husband's chart and he doesn't have Reddit so we posted this from my account. The start-up is certainly tied to his ideals. And what you said about his goals being security-oriented is spot on! Now of course this uncertainty around the start up scene in general is something he really doesn't like BUT he also wouldn't go back to his old job or that industry altogether i.e. no regrets around leaving that chapter behind.

Wow very accurate! My father was absent and self involved. He still to this day doesn't really act like I exist or that I'm perfectly fine and he never has to worry about me. He's more involved with my siblings then me. Yeah the Saturn part also makes sense as well. I do attract people who are too aggressive at times which makes it hard for me to set boundaries or even stick up for myself. Especially in relationships. Which I feel like is definitely what is part of me that makes me very insecure because I've had partners that will do a lot of name calling and try to to make me feel bad about myself. I'm learning though to work on that! Just a hard time realizing how many people I've let treat me like this for so long including my father. I will focus more on that thank you!! I 100% agree with that is definitely with what my sun and moon are looking for and I feel like I am currently not getting that and starting to realize and it's making me upset but at-least I realize it now and can move forward with what I know!

Oh wow! I would actually love to do all of that! That is crazy! Thank you so much for that. Thank you for taking the time to respond to me and being so helpful! I appreciate it!!

Could you further explain this planet's significance to me and what is meant by a life steered by ideals? I have some idea but I've always been really confused by Neptune's function in astrology. Is it Neptune that's about service? Or is it the Jupiter in Pisces?

Forward-Procedure-95 OP · 2h

Thank you! So spot on about the dominant female (mother) who was the center of attention and definitely overstepped/saw herself as superior. as for the father figure, he actually does see's me as someone special though most times he expects that out of me which led to him not usually acknowledging it in my childhood bc "that's what i'm supposed to do". after I got into astrology, I really have been trying to heal my inner child a trauma through acknowledging fault within my childhood to my parents. At first they were not cooperating but as I've gotten older and have been able to stand up for myself as an adult, I can see the change within that.

I am someone who has high standards for my partner mainly because I have let people in the past treat me poorly. When I get into a serious relationship, I want to make sure that I am not putting that person on a pedestal and also not expecting them to be perfect. thanks!

wizurrrd4 OP · 4h

Crazy spot on! This summer, I've been working through all of the things you have mentioned. Getting confidence "back", asserting myself, and being more connected with my subconscious. Being resourceful is one of the doctrines I live by so it's very interesting that my chart indicates this being a strong area.

When you say "heavy maternal circumstance that spawned some strong security issues" do you mean a mother who was not there? I'm very close with my mother although, we did go through a rough patch in my teens so I'm interested to hear your insight on this!

Wow, I can't thank you enough for this information! This was incredibly validating and helpful. I do consider myself creative, spiritual, and empathetic and feel it's best expressed through my writing.

My early home life included a single-parent alcoholic household, raised by my father, who was incredibly emotionally volatile. My mother left when I was very little, and as the oldest of my siblings, I was properly parentified. That sort of feels connected to your comment on my behind-the-scenes support for others. This trait carried out into most of my adult relationships as well.

Thank you again, so much, for this information!

Everything you said was so spot on! I wonder, could you see that from my 2H and 12H? I have a weird relationship with my father. He's emotionally distant yet suffocating at the same time. I know this sounds paradoxical. For instance, he couldn't care less when I cry, but then his "love language" is act of service, even though at this point I'm not really sure this is a form of love language. It feels more like a form of control (Pluto conjunct Sun?). So basically you think linguistics fits but in my case it's not really about the specific career path, it's more about whatever career can ultimately help me reestablish my sense of self worth?

I'm obsessed with money but can't seem to figure out how to stay organized with it and I do feel the need to learn something new. Would I be successful in this field? I get worried I'd have a lot of imposter syndrome bc I sucked in school, especially math but I also like to challenge myself in certain ways (not all the time but if it's going to further my well being then yes, give me the challenge). The contradiction of sucking at math, but wanting to go in finance seems crazy to me but something is telling me to take the risk...

Wow. Thank you very much for your thoughtful response. I find it an incredible and very accurate analysis.

My current focus is causing me to rethink everything in a very fundamental way (perhaps the transit of Venus retrograde in my Midheaven is relevant). The connection you make between artistic expression and lack of confidence makes complete sense to me.

Do you think it would be advisable for me to start working on my self-esteem so that when I present artistic work again, I do it from a position of greater strength? I'm at a point where I don't know what to do, whether to radically change what I was doing or to persist in a path that's barely yielding results. I've been going through a tough time due to personal reasons, and this has left me somewhat low on vital energy.

I had a feeling Pluto and my natal sun were an issue just because it's at the final degree and I'm in this life to learn some stuff. The spirituality stuff also makes sense because I've been going through it since 2018 and I'm finally starting to understand my purpose, learning metaphysical things like reiki and tarot(I'm trying with astrology but there's so much). The paradigm shift is definitely my people pleasing/no boundaries time in my life that has definitely started to fizzle out since having my MC.

That is really insightful and helpful! I've never been fully sure about pursuing music but this definitely helps in that decision. Thank you so much, I really appreciate it 😊

Thank you so much for response! In hindsight, I think I do deserve a well earned break. The last few years since Covid have been tough. I work in a hospital environment, and when covid struck, I was the only one who could do my job, and as such, it meant long hours under very stressful conditions. It was then recognised the value I bring in my work, so they asked me to set up a team to do the same work. The team is now set up, and means as now the manager, I can actually take a break as unlike during Covid, I have someone to cover me. In saying that, I still feel guilt, like I'm missing out on hardship whilst I take a break. I'm assuming this guilt has to do with me having Saturn in the 5th house. I do know that I need this break for my own mental health, or I'll end up leaving my job. I'm hoping I come back refreshed and ready to go (taking a month's leave). Thanks again, for taking the time to give me your thoughts!

Thank you so much for your analysis! You are spot on, specifically the liberating from maternal familial connections point. However, I am a little confused. Is your advice to me is that I need to be actively make the directional changes in my life/ career soon? Or are you saying this in a more general sense that I will be experiencing changes in life soon?

Thank you!

My mother is a Virgo Sun and I definitely feel that I am on a path away from her definition of "right/wrong" toward a broader definition - but somehow always with a stick down my shirt to keep my spine strait.

I didn't know that the Nodes had a theme of maternal influence. Is it more connected to the South node or the North node? Or is it rather the motion itself - the axis?

warmgingerbread OP · 3 hr. ago

thank you so much for your detailed response :) you're spot on with the overstepped boundaries as a child & i agree that not working on its affects on me has put my past relationship in jeopardy. i've been practicing a lot more self intropection over the past few years and i definitely see improvements.

also, could you explain what you mean by actor vs reactor? i'm not sure i quite understand what you mean.

Thanks you so much, it makes so much sense. I have had a good childhood but my mom can be very overprotective which resulted in me not learning basic life skills and become more social. I also faced lack of privacy, freedom and control issues which now make me angry and frustrated when I don't have control or freedom in my life. My dad has supported me a lot financially for education but I always felt we lack an emotional connection, he also sees my value only through my success since he invested a lot in me so now I feel am forever indebted to him. I still love them both and am grateful for wonderful parents but sometimes their "love" inhibits me more and can be a source to lash out.

Thank you so much! I've always been so curious of how my planets are all on one side. I'm glad to learn that with effort it could lead to eventual success. really sad that I seem to have to go through so so much to get there, and that there are some needs infernal to me that could be causing it (yikes!) encouraging regardless though, thank you

🥹 Thank you so so much for this very kind and in-depth read! I've been on this kind of career rollercoaster/search for a while and I know I'm passionate about healing in the many forms it takes I just am unsure how to start/which direction to take! I have screenshot your reply and will come back to it often :)

Oh wow this is so cool! Yeah, I noticed that most of them had moon-mercury/mercury-mars/mars-moon aspects or mercurial & moon signs in those planets.

Sadly I'll never know their house placements/rulers since there's no public info about their birth time.

Btw, what about jupiter? Can it also have influence especially in their career? Cos I also noticed someone of them had jupiter aspecting their mercury & moon.

Thank you so much for the in depth answer. You're right, I have a single mother. Parents divorced when I was a child and my mother has sole custody and hence why family life was strained and Def so emotionally turbulent that it was a survival challenge. I recently left my home to study abroad and I want to live here forever for this same reason. I don't wanna go back to that home life or that version of me. I want to rise higher and make a career here, never back to that childhood me. Will I be able to settle abroad and finally have a good lifestyle and happiness after so much struggle in my childhood? I barely got to be a child

This was very insightful, thank you for taking the time to read my chart and comment ❤️

blue7404 OP • 3h

Wow thank you so much for such an in depth response. It makes so much sense. I've really been working on myself and my inner child since the pandemic so it's comforting to hear that. What aspects in my chart were able to tell you about relationship success? Was it by knowing how one planet/thing is in relation to the other? Also how do stelliums tie into this? I have A scorpio stellium and many planets in my 9th house. I'm new to this so I just want to get a better idea of how to apply chart aspects to this kind of thing. Thank you again :)

Adept_Ad_8052 OP • 3h

Thank you so much! You read my personality really well - children are something I've "dreamed of" maybe having but always out off prioritizing to "someday". I definitely seek a lot of joy from my personal talents - and my interests have been so varied they tend to pull me in a lot of directions. This loss is the closest I've come to thinking about children in the now. Interestingly, the urge to have biological children is not as relevant. I could see myself embracing motherhood however it chooses to happen. My need for freedom and inherent rebelliousness has come in the way of my relationships in the past, I did something very similar with marriage - putting it off till I actually prioritized it and my partner. So let see! Thank you again 😊

Junior_Hedgehog_6978 OP • 6h

Okay, Thank you for your help!

BEHERENOW_ OP • 1h

Very very much appreciate you taking the time to analyze my chart and provide your insight! It really is like an entirely different language, and I'm very new to these concepts.

I'm hopeful that I will find ways to defend myself from the impact of this work as well as something that can energize me physically.

Can you provide clarification on what you mean by this: "You seem to be on the right track...as you are meant to build material security through taking things that originate with others (in this case, their mental health) and adding value to that."

Thank you again 💙

Capricorn Rising - Leo Moon

Good answer! The route I did ultimately take with it was to make a world out of it. Like an alternate universe fiction kind of thing, so something to escape to without running afoul of legal issues or potential sedition from would-be citizenry. I do feel quite powerless in this life, hence the need to feel more in control of my surroundings
